Franklin New York Intermediate-Term Tax-Free Income Fund

Advisor Class: FNYZX Class A: FKNQX | Commentary | as of June 30, 2026

Key Takeaways

- Markets: In the second quarter of 2026, new issuance of municipal (muni) bonds continued at a pace of more than 8% ahead of last year. By quarter-end, the yield on the benchmark 10-year (UST) had risen by 15 basis points (bps) to 4.47%, and the yield on the 30-year UST bond stood four bps higher at 4.95%. The June Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting was the first held under new Federal Reserve Chair Kevin Warsh. The FOMC left the policy rate unchanged at 3.50%-3.75%, but the meeting delivered a notable split: the dot plot and Summary of Economic Projections turned more hawkish and the statement removed the prior easing guidance, while Chair Warsh's press conference leaned dovish.
- Contributors: Overweight allocation to BBB rated bonds, security selection in A rated bonds and overweight allocation to A rated bonds.
- Detractors: Underweight allocation to muni bonds with 10 or more years to maturity, security selection in AA rated bonds and security selection in BBB rated bonds.
- Outlook: Municipal bond valuations continue to appear attractive relative to other fixed income sectors, particularly for tax-sensitive investors seeking durable income in a normalized rate environment. In a more challenging environment, strong bottom-up research and disciplined security selection will be essential to identifying relative value and preserving portfolio quality.

Performance Review

- Over the quarter, Franklin New York Intermediate-Term Tax-Free Income Fund underperformed its benchmark, the Linked Bloomberg New York Muni Bond/10-Year Muni Bond Index.
- The fund's yield curve positioning detracted from relative performance during the second quarter, primarily driven by our underweight to muni bonds with 10 or more years to maturity.
- Rating allocations benefited relative returns for the period, led by our overweights to BBB rated bonds and A rated bonds. Security selection detracted from relative results, particularly due to selection in AA, BBB and AAA rated securities. Meanwhile selection in A rated securities added to returns.

Outlook

- As we reach the midpoint of 2026, investor demand for municipal bonds has remained stronger than expected, keeping pace with elevated supply. Issuance continues to run more than 8% ahead of last year, and expectations remain intact for a record-setting year. The market absorbed elevated supply in June, while we expect July to be more favorable given positive reinvestment flows and issuance dynamics. During June, municipal bonds outperformed Treasuries across the yield curve, with yields declining at all maturities.
- Economic fundamentals remain broadly stable, with healthy tax bases supported by steady employment and solid capital market returns. Rainy-day funds remain robust at both the state and local levels, while budget season has brought increased attention to fiscal policy decisions across several key cities and states.
- Absolute yields and valuations remain attractive relative to other fixed income sectors, in our view. Although valuations are modestly less compelling than at the start of 2026, we continue to view them as a relative strength for municipal bonds. In this environment, active management and disciplined security selection remain essential to identifying relative value and preserving portfolio quality.
