Class A: SHRAX Class I: SAGYX

Commentary | as of December 31, 2025

Key Takeaways

- Markets: U.S. equities delivered resilient but volatile performance in the fourth quarter. While major indexes remained close to all-time highs, market conditions shifted meaningfully beneath the surface. The S&P 500 Index returned 2.7% during the quarter, while the benchmark Russell Midcap Growth Index declined 3.7%.
- Contributors: Holdings in Vertex Pharmaceuticals, Broadcom and Freeport McMoRan. Stock selection in information technology (IT) and communication services, an overweight to materials.
- Detractors: Holdings in e.l.f. Beauty, Doximity and Robinhood Markets. Overweights to IT and communication services, stock selection in consumer staples.
- Outlook: Markets remain resilient, but volatility has increased as momentum-driven areas cooled and stock-level dispersion widened, reinforcing the importance of disciplined stock selection and a balanced approach to portfolio construction.

Performance Review

- The Fund outperformed the benchmark gross of fees, driven by a combination of balanced portfolio construction and strong stock selection. Early in the quarter, momentum tied to AI and technology supported results, while the portfolio's exposure to steadier compounders and defensive growth names helped protect performance as volatility increased.
- Shopify, an e-commerce platform that enables merchants to operate and scale digital storefronts, benefited from continued adoption by larger enterprises and improving monetization across its ecosystem.
- While communication services was the greatest detractor within the benchmark, our differentiated positioning supported relative outperformance. For example, a number of portfolio holdings in sports and live media, such as Madison Square Garden Sports, Madison Square Garden Entertainment and TKO Group, were positive contributors in the quarter.
- Following a period of strong performance, shares of e.l.f. Beauty, a cosmetics company focused on affordable, digitally native products, declined as sales growth was hurt by management's decision to stop shipments to retailers that were slow to pass through tariff-related price increases. That said, we are encouraged that consumption trends for the brand remain healthy and management is already seeing shipment growth recover in the current quarter.
- Within health care, top individual contributor Vertex Pharmaceuticals benefited from growing optimism around its kidney disease pipeline and continued to demonstrate the value of idiosyncratic, innovation-driven growth.
- Within industrials, for instance, we rotated our exposure in the fourth quarter from Old Dominion Freight Line, a leading less-than-truckload (LTL) carrier, into XPO, the fourth-largest LTL provider in North America. We remain mindful of the still-challenging macro environment for freight and see greater idiosyncratic growth potential at XPO. Under new leadership, the company is improving service levels, pricing discipline and margins, leaving more room for outperformance should macro malaise persist.

Outlook

- Our outlook remains consistent with what we articulated earlier in the year — and importantly, what played out in the fourth quarter. Markets remain resilient, but volatility has increased as momentum-driven areas cooled and stock-level dispersion widened, reinforcing the importance of disciplined stock selection and a balanced approach to portfolio construction.
- AI continues to represent a powerful long-term opportunity, though early beneficiaries such as semiconductors and infrastructure have already seen significant gains. We are focused on making sure we have not only the right exposure within the AI complex but also other offensive bets in the portfolio to position the Strategy well should market leadership broaden further. At the same time, we continue to emphasize balance, owning companies not only with offensive growth potential but also defensive characteristics built on strong free cash flow, clean balance sheets and proven management teams, which should help to mitigate the portfolio's risk should the environment weaken.
- We remain opportunistic — taking advantage of pockets when stocks are oversold and trimming when enthusiasm runs ahead of fundamentals — while staying committed to a bottom-up, high active share, and long-term oriented approach. We believe this discipline positions the Strategy well to navigate continued volatility, identify durable winners beyond broad market trends, and drive long-term performance for clients.
