2017 Qualified Dividend Income Percentage for Individual Shareholders

All or a portion of a shareholder's ordinary income dividend from a mutual fund may be taxed at a reduced capital gains rate rather than the higher marginal tax rates applicable to ordinary income. The amount of a dividend subject to this lower rate is known as Qualified Dividend Income or QDI and is reported in Box 1b of the Form 1099-DIV which was mailed to shareholders in early 2018.

The list below provides a summary QDI percentage for calendar year 2017 for each of the Legg Mason affiliated funds that distributed QDI during 2017. This data is being provided for informational purposes only. If a fund paid more than one distribution during the year, the amount reported in Box 1b of a shareholder's Form 1099-DIV was based on the ODI percentage specific to each distribution. Shareholders who received Form 1099-DIV should use the amounts reported to them on Form 1099-DIV when preparing their tax return.

To treat a dividend as qualifying for lower rates, shareholders must have held shares on which the dividend was paid for at least 61 days during the 121-day period beginning 60 days before the ex-dividend date of the distribution.

The ordinary income dividend paid by a mutual fund (the amount included in Box 1a of Form 1099-DIV) includes net short-term capital gains and foreign taxes paid, if applicable, which may not qualify for the lower QDI rates. As a result, the QDI percentage for a particular fund may vary widely from year to year, depending on the amount of short-term gains and foreign taxes distributed.

This information does not apply to shareholders that are corporations for U.S. tax purposes. Corporate shareholders may obtain the percentage of dividends that gualifies for the Dividends Received Deduction for Corporations from the 2017 Legg Mason Tax Guide located in the Tax Center.
